To graspits full lutent one must witness its enactment at every opportunity, for it is a study of humanity and teaches a lesson of deep significance. Ledger RALLY IN LEWIS.

Judge Pratt's Enthusiastic Reception at Tollesboro.

EVERYBODY ALIVE UP THERE.

Tollesboro was the scene of a regular oldeay person will be admitted to these columns.] Kentucky was marked by one of the biggest

Judge Pratt was accompanied to Tollesboro by Hon, W. H. Cox and Postmaster Clarence L. Mathews, Congressman Sam J. Pugh arriving there about noon

The speaking was beld in a large warehous which had been beautifully decorated with bunting, flags and autumn leaves. Over the speaker's stand bung a lithograph of Genera W. S. Taylor draped in red, white and blue bunting. So great was the crowd which gath ered for the speaking that all could not get inside the immense warehouse. The overflow gathered in groups about the different exits. and several of the seals broke down, so packed were some parts of the building.

Judge Pratt, who was introduced by Di William Bowman, was liberally applauded as he arose. In opening, he diverted his attention to a depunciation of the Goebel Law guest of her aunt, Mrs. America Riggen, a which he said passed over the veto of one Governor, over the opposition of every Re many of the leaders of the Democratic party, who had been prominent in its councils for the past half century. He thought it a peculiar way to secure a fair election to place everything in the hands of one party as this law does. He told how at Georgetown all Recrats put in their places. The law allowed such changes until the time of election, and as the two Goebel men on each County Board constitute a quorum, changes can be easily made

Applause greeted his statement that the moral sent ment of old Kentucky is aroused. and that when November comes her people rise and in their strength wipe the Goebel Law from the statute books. Judge Pratt told of the good record of the Republibouse warming at Mr. Martin's near Plum- cans in their state and National Administraione. If upon no other platform, he declared, they deserved re-election on this.

Those who were sick, or had sickness in their families, or were out of the city, on the regular Registration Day, Julius S. Degman is now a Corporal in Com- can register at the County Clerk's office Monday, October 30th, Tuesday, Os-Pa., will start for the other side of the world tober 31st, or Wednesday, November 1st.

Tollesboro was the scene of a regular old-fashioned Republican raily Thursday, when the close of Judge Pratt's trip in Northern Kentucky was marked by one of the biggest and most enthusiastic meetings which even the strong Republican county of Lewis has not seen in years.

Although Tollesboro is only a town of 300 population, fully 1,200 people heard the Judge's speech.
